In 1998, the Department of Alcohol & Drug Services (DADS) published the first Learning Institute Catalog. Today, the Department of Behavioral Health Services (BHSD), Learning Partnership Division continues providing exceptional trainings. Working in collaboration, both Mental Health and Substance Use Treatment Services (SUTS) are providing trainings that will be available to all staff.

The trainings will remain free for Santa Clara County employees and BHSD contractors. Those needing continuing education units (CEUs) will be pleased to know that the CEUs fees are waived.

To register on-line, please follow the directions on page seven and sign up for these exciting new courses.

You now can find this Training Catalog on the Santa Clara County Behavioral Health Services Department Website. Click on Business Partners (tab on top of page), click on Training in the dropdown. Then Click on Learning Partnership Training Catalog on the right side of page under Quick Links.
In order to be ecologically minded, Learning Partnership Training Department no longer is responsible for printing out copies of training handouts for our trainings. You can now go to the SCC Behavioral Health Services Dept. Website and find all handouts there for each month. Please go to the following link: sccbhd.org/training

You will need to print out your own copy of the handout prior to attending the training. Or, you can bring your laptop or use your Smart Phone to access the handout during the training. We will not provide any hard copies of the handouts for the trainings except for the evaluation forms and any forms that are needed to be completed during the training.

Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy and Relapse Prevention Strategies

COURSE DESCRIPTION:
Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy (CBT) for Substance Use Disorders (SUD) was initially directed toward preventing relapse to problematic drinking, and was later adapted for use with cocaine-dependent individuals. Since then it has become a mainstay of evidence-based SUD treatment. Cognitive-behavioral strategies are based on the theory that in the development of maladaptive behavioral patterns like substance abuse, learning processes play a critical role. Individuals in CBT learn to identify and correct problematic behaviors by applying a range of different skills that can be used to stop alcohol and other drug use. As well as address a range of other problems that often co-occur with it. CBT for substance use disorders has demonstrated efficacy as both a monotherapy and as part of combination treatment strategies. The purpose of this interactive daylong CATES training is to provide participants with a detailed overview of cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) and relapse prevention (RP) strategies, the available resources and encourage use of these strategies in daily clinical practice. The training is broken into three parts. All three parts of the daylong training will include trainer demonstrations and, group discussions.

COURSE OBJECTIVES - Participants will:
- Discuss key principles of classical and operant conditioning, social learning theory, and behavioral modeling.
- Describe how these key principles form the foundation of cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) and relapse prevention (RP).
- Define drug refusal skills, abstinence violation syndrome, and cognitive reframing. Then discuss how these critical concepts can be incorporated into individual and group CBT sessions.
- Define the 5 W’s of a client’s drug use and demonstrate how to conduct a relapse analysis.

Motivational Interviewing 101: The Basics on Engaging People Into Treatment

DESCRIPTION:
Client hostility and low interest in treatment occur in many clinical situations and make it hard to reach clients and help them change. People with co-occurring mental and substance-related disorders; adolescents and others mandated for treatment; and assisting clients to function in the community are all situations that can challenge engagement skills. It will provide concepts and techniques on ways to quickly engage clients into treatment and increase their interest in changing. There will be opportunity to discuss case examples and participants are encouraged to bring clinical situations and vignettes for role playing and consultation.

OBJECTIVES: Participants will:

- Identify the relationship between self-change and treatment practices and the role of therapeutic alliance.
- Review the difference between change and sustain talk, discord and “resistance” in engagement using Motivational Interviewing principles and practices.
- Apply methods to build motivation for change, work with mandated clients and avoid traps and barriers to engagement of clients.

Course Description:
The ASAM Criteria are the most widely used criteria for assessment, service planning, placement and continuing care for addiction treatment. This workshop will focus on skill-building to rate multidimensional severity and use evaluation of the six ASAM Criteria dimensions to make level of care (LOC) decisions. Clinicians involved in planning and managing care often lack a common language and systematic assessment and treatment approach that allows for effective, individualized treatment plans. The ASAM Criteria provides this common language. Review of actual documentation of assessment, treatment planning and progress evaluation will be used to build skills to implement the ASAM Criteria. Using participants’ actual documentation will assist in rating severity and LOC decisions.

Course Objectives: Participants will:

- Identify assessment components of each of the ASAM Criteria six dimensions.
- Apply participant case material to improve risk rating skills and LOC decisions.
- Discuss discrepancies between their case material risk ratings and ASAM Criteria ratings.

Course Description: Transformational Care Planning is a Person-Centered and Family-Directed process of working with others that is based on the reality that consumers and family members possess the most functional knowledge of their strengths, capacities, hopes, and dreams. These core strengths and understanding are the basis for a collaborative relationship with providers in the context of shared decision making. The consumer or family and the treatment team work together to create strategies to help consumers and families reach their goals and mitigate barriers or impediments to reaching those goals. The planning process is comprised of a rich, strength based assessment, a person- or family-centered treatment plan that consists of over-arching life goals, short-term goals crafted to remove barriers to those life goals, and strength-based interventions that utilize not only clinical tools, but natural supports, community resources, and self-management strategies.

Course Objectives: Participants will:

- Identify the definition of both person-centered and family-driven care.
- Discuss the core values and rationale for Transformational Care Planning, including consumer and family outcomes of wellness, resiliency and recovery.
- Identify and demonstrate the construction of the core components of a comprehensive assessment, shared understanding (narrative summary), and care (treatment) plan.
- Demonstrate an intermediate level of understanding regarding the documentation of person-centered and or family-directed treatment plan in manner consistent with the establishment of medical necessity and compliance within a recovery, resiliency, and wellness oriented framework of engagement.

Providing Inclusive Services and Care for LGBT People

COURSE DESCRIPTION:
A visit to a behavioral health care facility can make people nervous for any number of reasons. Some people may be uncomfortable revealing sensitive information to behavioral health care professionals who need it to provide certain services. Others find it difficult to talk about private health concerns. Creating an environment in which these conversations are more comfortable for the client is an important goal for all behavioral health care staff. Because health care is for everyone, we must be prepared to serve people of all races, ethnicities, religions, ages, and backgrounds. When people have bad experiences with behavioral health care staff simply because they are (or seem) different, they may hide important information about themselves – or worse, they may not return for needed health care. This training has been developed to help behavioral health care staff provide an affirmative, inclusive, and respectful environment for all clients, with a focus on lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) people. Many LGBT individuals have difficulty finding health care where they feel included and accepted. Negative encounters can occur with any staff member LGBT people meet, from the time they arrive for a visit until the time they leave. These incidents could happen with a security guard, receptionist, clinician, case manager, doctor, or other health care provider. Some LGBT people have reported that they have overheard jokes or slurs, or have received insensitive criticisms about their appearance or behavior. In many cases, problems arise from simple oversights or mistakes made by well-meaning staff who lack understanding about how to interact with LGBT people. For LGBT people who have experienced stigma and discrimination during their lives, even small mistakes can bring up past negative experiences. These feelings can affect their willingness to seek health care again. Unless we communicate with knowledge and understanding about the health concerns, barriers to care, and other needs that are common among LGBT people, they may not get the services they need. In this training, we will cover LGBT terms and concepts as well as some common health concerns. It also includes recommended practices for communicating with LGBT people, providing good customer service, and creating a safe, affirming, and inclusive environment.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:
- Describe health Disparities in lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender populations
- Explain LGBT definitions and concepts
- Identify principles for effective communications with LGBT clients

Transforming Somatic Grief in the Work Place

Lyn Prashant, PhD, FT, is a pioneer in the field of Somatic Thanatology. She developed a unique approach to grief counseling called “Degriefing” or “Integrative Grief Therapy”; the main premise being “grief is the most available, untapped, emotional resource for personal transformation.” Lyn, mentored by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross and Stephen Levine, received training as a Traumatic Grief Specialist at (JRI), Justice Resource Institute, Boston, MA. Lyn counsels and trains students and organizations in Cape Town, South Africa, Mexico and the U.S. Lyn keynoted at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, MN., co-authored the Grief Studies Program, (and taught) at U.C. Berkeley and the U. of Arizona. She wrote the (IGT Training Manual), Transforming Somatic Grief, contributed a chapter to Techniques of Grief Therapy: Creative Practices for Counseling the Bereaved, and Sibling Loss Across the Lifespan: Research, Practice and Personal Stories. Her latest research involves Mindfulness Based Stress Reduction (MBSR), bodywork and the use of nutrition to balance the extremes of bereavement. Lyn’s work is in honor of her late husband, Mark Greenberg, and her beloved sister, Donna S. Brown.

Description:
Degriefing®: Integrative Grief Therapy promotes skillful care for clients and maximum well-being for counselors. Learning about the nature of grief, how to normalize it’s complex effects, and demonstrating ways to transform it with integrative therapies, is a key focus of this comprehensive didactic and experiential staff training. Grief is the body mind’s response to any and all types of loss. The staff is in contact with and vulnerable to vicarious loss on a continual basis. Personal issues of loss are re-stimulated and exacerbated by daily exposure to the shared emotional pool of grief that exists within the professional setting. Addiction counselors holding space for clients are physically affected by “somatic resonance”: defined as experiencing the contagion of another’s pain in both our body and mind. All to often this leads to empathy fatigue and burnout. This training provides a comprehensive study in, and pragmatic tools to efficiently work with our own grief as well as that of our clients.

Beyond Kale and Pedicures: Strategies to Reduce Compassion Fatigue and Burnout

Description:
There is now over two decades of research proving that working in high stress, trauma-exposed professions such as community mental health, law enforcement and health care carries elements of risk to the care provider: compassion fatigue, secondary trauma and burnout can take a cumulative toll on us as individuals and as teams. What can professionals do to protect themselves from the difficult stories that they work with on a regular basis, limited resources and high volume of work, while still remaining effective and compassionate? This interactive, evidence-based and trauma-informed presentation is suitable for novice and experienced participants alike. Using the most recent research in the field, it will explore assumptions about compassion fatigue, secondary and vicarious trauma, the organizational and personal barriers that professionals face in their daily lives, and offers new and creative approaches to transforming these occupational hazards.

Objectives: Participants will:
- Identify causes of secondary traumatic stress in their day to day work
- Identify signs that they are being impacted by secondary traumatic stress
- Demonstrate understanding of 10 key strategies for addressing trauma in the workplace
- Formulate an individualized concrete plan involving identification of signs of STS and strategies to enact to mitigate the impacts of working in a trauma exposed workplace

Introduction to Co-Occurring Disorders Part I: Theoretical Perspectives, Practices and Principles for Integrated COD Services

Course Description:
Many individuals who present for services exhibit signs and symptoms of substance use and mental health problems. Because clinicians often lack training in both addiction and mental health treatment, clients with these co-occurring presentations frequently receive inadequate care, caught in the gap between the mental health and addiction treatment systems. Clinicians can feel ill equipped to face the increasing population of multi-problem and co-occurring disordered people. The purpose of the workshop is to assist clinicians in developing assessment and treatment methodologies to improve service delivery for people presenting with co-occurring substance use and mental health issues. This workshop will enhance clinical skills in assessing co-occurring disorders, identifying appropriate treatment services and improving systems of care. This training will also assist in developing an integrated treatment approach for people with cooccurring disorders.

He is also a Senior Fellow, Justice Programs Office (JPO) of the School of Public Affairs (SPA) at American University, Washington, DC. Dr. Mee-Lee has over thirty years experience in person centered treatment and program development for people with co-occurring mental health and substance use conditions.
