ANNUAL REPORT
DOMESTIC VIOLENCE DEATH REVIEW TEAM
JANUARY 1, 2019– DECEMBER 31, 2019

The Santa Clara County Domestic Violence Death Review Team (DVDRT) is a multi-disciplinary team of experts that investigates and reviews all domestic violence-related deaths that occur in Santa Clara County. The DVDRT provides monthly updates to the Santa Clara County Domestic Violence Council and prepares an annual report that the Domestic Violence Council posts on its website. The annual report contains recommendations to community leaders and messages to victims and community members based upon what DVDRT members have learned from the review process, with the goal of improving system response and preventing future deaths.

OVERVIEW AND INTRODUCTION

For a quarter of a century, we have closely probed these terrible crimes as a community of law enforcement professionals and advocates to tease out patterns, strengthen weaknesses in our systems, and to discover powerful tools of prevention. With approaches like the Family Justice Centers and our increasing use of gun restraining orders, we have gotten better at protecting survivors so that they do not join these annually collated statistics. There is much work to be done.

What follows is a grim recitation of statistics and analyses. We have not forgotten that behind all these statistics were individuals, men and women with vibrant lives cut short. We dedicate this report to them and their loved ones and devote our ongoing efforts to find better practices moving forward.

In 2019, there were two domestic violence-related deaths - one murder victim and a suicide victim. That number represents a decrease from 2018, when 7 deaths occurred. This year’s number of domestic violence-related deaths is the lowest number that Santa Clara County has had over the past 25 years (equaling the 2 deaths in 2014), a figure that has been trending downward. From 1993-2009, our County averaged 12 domestic violence deaths a year. Since 2010, the average number of domestic violence deaths a year is 9.

In 2019, each domestic violence-related death involved a perpetrator charged with a domestic violence criminal offense. Of those 2 perpetrators, one was charged with murder, and one is no longer facing criminal charges because of the inability to prove the underlying domestic violence offense after the suicide of the victim.
2019 CASE SUMMARIES

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE-RELATED DEATHS

The DVDRT defines a “domestic violence-related death” as a death that occurs when the perpetrator and victim were involved in an intimate relationship, either at the time of death or at any time prior to the death, and domestic violence was the catalyst for the death. A domestic violence-related death also includes the death of a family member, friend, and community member such as a first responder or innocent bystander, if the motivation for the homicide was domestic violence. Domestic violence-related deaths include all homicides: murders, murder/suicides, suicides, fatal accidents, and “blue suicides”. “Blue suicides” occur when an individual threatens to kill police officers, verbally or by use of a weapon, and intends that the police will respond by firing upon the individual.

Each fatality is counted separately and given their own number, even if multiple people die during one incident. The numbers begin this year with #296, which marks the 296th domestic violence-related death since the formation of DVDRT in Santa Clara County in 1993.

#296 SUICIDE

On August 14, 2019, the perpetrator and victim had been married for 38 years and had 3 adult children. The perpetrator and victim argued, he grabbed her, hit her several times in the face, and sexually assaulted her, afterwards threatening to chop her up with a machete. Criminal charges were filed against the perpetrator on August 19, 2019. The victim met with victim advocates and the prosecutor on the case on several occasions, stating that she felt that she was being blamed for reporting the attack to the police which led to the perpetrator’s arrest. The victim was offered domestic violence counseling and other services by a community-based organization and DA Victim Services. She initially expressed interest in these services but ultimately declined. On August 31, 2019 the victim committed suicide. Because the suicide was preceded by domestic violence, and the domestic violence was a catalyst for the suicide, the case is categorized as a domestic violence related death.

#297 MURDER

On December 25, 2019, the perpetrator intentionally hit the victim, whom she had been dating, with her car, resulting in his death. The perpetrator is charged with murder and the case is pending in court. Among the many factors considered are allegations of histories of domestic violence by both, and the fact that services from domestic violence agencies or the police were not sought by either in the months before the death.

1 The relationship is the intimate relationship, past or present, that the perpetrator was in, regardless of whether the ultimate victim was a partner in that relationship. Most years there has been at least one incident where domestic violence resulted in the death of a family member, friend or first responder. This year was no exception.

In 2019, there were 5,908 domestic violence cases referred to the District Attorney’s Office for review. This number was a 7% increase from the number of cases referred in 2018, which was 5,519, and a 27.5% increase from the number of domestic violence cases referred to the DA’s Office five years ago. Of the 5,908 cases referred in 2019, 3,231 (54.7%) supported the filing of criminal charges. This number is lower than the historical 60% filing rate since these statistics have been kept.

In 2019, 909 (28%) of filed cases resulted in felony charges, and 2,322 (72%) of filed cases resulted in misdemeanor charges. In 2019, there were 2,677 cases (45.3%) where no criminal charges were filed.

RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE DVDRT TO COMMUNITY LEADERS

The DVDRT has compiled a list of recommendations for agencies throughout Santa Clara County. There are myriad government, private, non-profit and other groups working to end domestic violence. We trust that they will continue their excellent efforts. The recommendations for 2019 are intended to be incorporated into the fine work already underway.

Lethality Assessment Tool

The significance of this Tool, attached to this report as Attachment 6, cannot be overstated. It provides a succinct script to elicit the level of danger. It focuses the questioner’s inquiry in a situation where the victim is likely feeling overwhelmed and unable to independently identify the most important information to share.

The Lethality Assessment Tool continues 1) to assist law enforcement in knowing which cases warrant immediate referral to a domestic violence agency, 2) to inform prosecutors’ decisions regarding filing charges, and 3) to provide information helpful to the issue of custody status in cases where charges are filed. Perhaps the single most informative factor appears to be whether or not the victim answers “yes” to the question “Do you think your current or previous partner might try to kill you?”

We know that perpetrators do not all present the same lethality risk and that victims do not always reliably detect the degree of danger posed by their perpetrators. Domestic violence often occurs gradually and in a manner that normalizes it for victims. The Lethality Assessment Tool, which the Santa Clara County ‘Domestic Violence Protocol for Law Enforcement’ requires be administered at the scene of every domestic violence incident, and is used by advocates and prosecutors as well, assists us in identifying those cases where a victim’s safety is most at risk and where maximum resources need to be brought to bear to keep the victim safe. It can be revealing for a victim as well, to go through the questions and reflect on how many factors exist in their relationship.

Challenges remain in the application and making sure that the tool is used consistently, and the results shared with agencies and individuals caring for the victim and working to hold the abuser accountable. We encourage law enforcement, pretrial services officers, and judicial officers to make good use of the tool in deciding whether to arrest, and whether a perpetrator can be safely released. We encourage prosecutors to use the tool in deciding whether and how to charge a case and to advise the Court with respect to setting bail. We encourage victim advocacy groups to use the tool with their clients to assist in safety planning.

Strangulation and Traumatic Brain Injuries
Mental Health Prevalence and Intervention

Over the last 25 years, mental health issues come up frequently in domestic violence homicides. Mental health and substance abuse disorder do not cause and do not excuse domestic violence. However, both perpetrators and victims of domestic violence are at increased risk to have significant mental health disorders. Victims are more likely than non-victims to suffer from depression, anxiety, suicidal thoughts, and post-traumatic stress disorder.
(PTSD) as a result of the domestic violence. In addition, research shows that persons with bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, and eating disorders are at higher risk to become victims of domestic violence.

In perpetrators, the main psychological issues seen are personality disorders, primarily antisocial and borderline personality disorder. However, perpetrators are also at higher risk to suffer from depression, anxiety, suicidal thoughts, and PTSD. In addition, they are much more likely to abuse alcohol and drugs, and often use this as an excuse for their behavior. In 2018, 40% of the domestic violence death incidents involved a murder-suicide and this behavior has been seen in previous years. When a perpetrator threatens suicide, this increases the chance that the domestic violence will become lethal, even though the perpetrator may do this to control the victim’s behavior and may not be initially viewed by the victim as a real threat.

We would like to see greater education of the mental health system regarding domestic violence and the resources available to victims, including referrals to advocates. Our experience has shown that perpetrators and victims are more likely to interact with the mental health system prior to the homicide, including being placed on a 5150 hold. We would like to investigate collaborating with mental health and professional agencies, especially emergency services, so they are more likely to ask persons with mental health symptoms if they have been a victim or perpetrator of domestic violence and make a referral.

The primary persons executing 5150 holds are law enforcement. We would like to explore ways to have law enforcement and agencies referring to emergency services, alert the psychiatric facility when the individual is the subject of the restraining order, had been violent toward others in the past, or has obtained a restraining order against a perpetrator. In addition, the DVDRT proposes that, whenever law enforcement writes a 5150 hold, they also cross-check the individual’s probation and parole status and notify those agencies when applicable. This practice already exists among some law enforcement agencies but should be a widespread and consistent practice. We will also explore the feasibility of having law enforcement check if the person on a 5150 hold is the subject of a protective order and, if so, take steps to notify the protected person of the hold.

Adverse Childhood Experiences and Domestic Violence

We have repeatedly noted throughout the years that, as children, domestic violence perpetrators have (1) witnessed domestic violence against their mother and parental substance abuse, (2) were subjected to childhood physical, emotional, and sexual abuse, and/or (3) had a parent who went to prison, often for violent reasons. These experiences are designated as Adverse Childhood Experiences or ACEs. ACEs science provides the team an approach to a case by assessing the presence of childhood abuse (emotional, physical and sexual), neglect (physical and emotional) and household dysfunction (mental illness, incarcerated relative, violence toward mother, substance abuse and divorce) during the course of the victim and perpetrator’s lives. A child subjected to these ACEs is more likely to become a perpetrator of domestic violence. Research has shown that a child exposed to the three ACEs of physical abuse, sexual abuse, and growing up with a battered mother, were at a greatly increased risk of becoming a domestic violence perpetrator as an adult. That child is also at higher risk for depression, anxiety, suicide, substance abuse, and being a victim of violence. The more ACEs a child experiences, the higher the risk of becoming a batterer, and experiencing mental health problems and decreased life expectancy. Thus, it is extremely important that the agencies and individuals who encounter children and individuals with mental health disorders are aware of these risks. Similar for the mental health interventions, we would like to collaborate to educate mental health professionals, agencies, primary care physicians and pediatricians to recognize and try to intervene early for children subjected to these ACEs.

Strangulation and Traumatic Brain Injuries

We continue to learn more about the severity and significance of the injuries caused by strangulation and blows to the head, regardless of visible injury. Traumatic brain injuries (TBI) account for significant morbidity and mortality. Studies on traumatic brain injury and intimate partner violence have shown that up to 30-75% of women in physically abusive relationships suffer at least one (1) traumatic brain injury resulting from abuse. Traumatic brain injury can result from blunt trauma to the head (i.e., being slapped, punched, kicked, and struck with an object) or decreased oxygen delivery to the brain during episodes of strangulation. Physical injuries may be absent in TBI. Symptoms of TBI include seeing stars or spots, feeling dizzy, feeling dazed or confused, feeling stunned or disoriented or having loss of memory about what happened. TBI may or may not result in loss of consciousness (being aware of one’s surroundings) and can occur with a single hard hit to the head or repetitive blows to the head. TBI does not discriminate in Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) making both men and women of all ages vulnerable when sustaining a head injury. We do not know the long-term effects of TBI in IPV, but current literature suggests that survivors of IPV with TBI have cognitive and neuroimaging abnormalities.

TBI should be assessed in every IPV encounter and especially, in any survivor of IPV who has obvious injuries to the head or is appearing to have difficulty comprehending questions pertaining to the violent encounter (injuries may be absent in TBI):

1. Did you see stars or spots (proceed to ask about loss of consciousness)?
2. Did you feel dizzy?
3. Did you feel dazed or confused?
4. Did you feel stunned or disoriented?
5. Do you have memory loss about what happened?

If any of the 5 above questions were answered as yes, proceed to ask the following:

6. When did the incident occur (day and time of day)?
7. Did you black out or lose consciousness?

We urge law enforcement, advocacy groups, and medical personnel to assess for traumatic brain injury in any domestic violence victim as presentation for TBI, especially in strangulation cases, may vary greatly and not be immediately identified.

Victim Outreach

This year we reviewed cases where victims had never reached out to law enforcement or a domestic violence victim services agency for assistance. The District Attorney’s Office has an in-house Victim Services Unit (VSU) which is enabling more contact with more victims. The DVDRT is looking for ways the VSU and community based domestic violence advocacy services can better partner to reach victims.
Cases reviewed by DVDRT in detail and with the benefit of 20-20 hindsight reveal the complexity of even the most seemingly straight-forward case. Unveiling a victim’s entire story requires patience and skill. Seeing only a tip of the iceberg can be confusing. For example, why is the victim reporting seemingly de minimis conduct now, and alleging far more serious unreported conduct in the past? The array of perspectives sitting around the table at DVDRT meetings yields valuable insights. Someone points out that victims rarely report the first instance of abuse, even when it is severe. We discuss the fact that many times they are persuaded the abuser is truly sorry and it will never recur. Perhaps the abuse does subside or even end for a while. But eventually the victim will perceive signs of impending violence. This time, knowing what will come next, maybe they will call when the abuser shoves them, not waiting to be strangled again. Once we hear the full story, we no longer need to ask the question that begets more self-blame than helpful information: “Why didn’t you report earlier?” We must make sure our interactions with victims are always trauma-informed.

Gun Violence Restraining Orders

There may be situations where an intimate partner or another person has information that another person is an immediate danger to him or herself or others and has custody or control of a firearm.

In those situations, law enforcement should be called immediately to consider a Gun Violence Restraining Order (GVRO) when less restrictive alternatives are inadequate. Law enforcement can call the on-call prosecutor after business hours through County Communications for assistance with obtaining a GVRO or call the DA’s Office’s main number during the day (408-299-3099).

5150 Holds

Mental health issues are suspected in some but not all domestic violence-related death incidents. Often folks with suspected mental health issues are also abusing alcohol or drugs which makes diagnoses difficult to confirm without formal assessment, which is rarely available. Moreover, mental health issues and substance abuse do not cause and certainly do not excuse domestic violence in any form.

This year, our study of cases revealed opportunities for greater collaboration when it comes to perpetrators placed on 5150 holds. For example, HIPPA regulations preclude medical providers from alerting domestic violence victims or persons protected by a restraining order or even the probation department when a perpetrator who is a probationer or restrained person is placed on a 5150 hold. However, referring agencies such as law enforcement may not be similarly constrained. In the coming year we will be looking to those referring agencies for assistance in alerting those who need to know that a particular individual has been placed on such a hold, particularly when the reason for the hold includes threats of self-harm, when the person has harmed others in the past, and/or when the person is the subject of a restraining order.

Threatening self-harm can be a factor suggesting lethality for others. One idea the DVDRT proposes is for law enforcement to check probation and parole status and notify those agencies when applicable. This practice already exists among some law enforcement agencies but should be widespread. We hope to explore the efficacy and feasibility of asking law enforcement to check whether the subject of the 5150 hold is a restrained person in a protective order and if so, to take steps to try to notify the protected person of the hold.

Children Affected by Domestic Violence

Law enforcement and the Department of Family and Children’s Services (DFCS) should work closely together in domestic violence cases involving children. Their partnership can help ensure that the right questions are asked, and necessary follow-up is undertaken. For example, law enforcement already notes when children are present at the scene of a domestic violence incident and the report is eventually forwarded to DFCS. The DVDRT proposes that even in instances where children are not present, parties to a domestic violence incident should be asked by responding law enforcement if either of them has children that spend time with the couple. If so, this fact should be noted in the report, and the report forwarded to DFCS. Conversely, when DFCS becomes aware from a non-law enforcement source that a child is reporting domestic violence in their home, but the victim parent denies, this allegation may benefit from further law enforcement investigation.

Love, dependence and sometimes even disbelief can cause victims and their families and friends to explain away or ignore troubling signs of abuse and potential lethality. Here are lessons learned from decades of studying domestic violence cases, both lethal and non-lethal, including signs to look for and actions that can be taken to save lives.

Warning Signs for Victims

The DVDRT studies domestic violence-related deaths within the context of both lethal and non-lethal acts of domestic violence. The Domestic Violence Death Review Team discussed numerous controlling behaviors that are commonly seen in these domestic violence incidents and encourage individuals to reach out for advice and assistance if your partner:

(1) Physically abuses you in any way.
(2) Threatens you.
(3) Makes you afraid they will follow through with their threats.
(4) Isolates you from friends and family members.
(5) Becomes emotionally intense and frightening.
(6) Keeps you on an emotional roller coaster.
(7) Does not, cannot, or will not accept you ending the relationship.
(8) Uses force, coercion, or threats to control you.
(9) Apologizes profusely for “bad” conduct but then repeats the conduct on other occasions.
(10) Shows anger that is out of proportion to the incident.
(11) Never takes responsibility for the problems in the relationship and minimizes, denies, or blames you for the partner’s behavior.
(12) Often or always has access to firearms or other deadly weapons.
(13) Monitors your phone calls, text messages, emails, letters, and computer usage, or uses social media to detect and follow your daily activities.
(14) Is extremely jealous and always wants to know your location.
(15) Wants to have control over your financial situation and restricts your financial independence, keeps important documents and other information from you.
(16) Wants to know everything about you from the very beginning of the relationship, including phone numbers, access codes, and computer passwords.
(17) Abuses alcohol or prescription drugs or uses illegal drugs.

All threats must be taken seriously, whether or not you feel the perpetrator has the means to follow through on them and whether or not the perpetrator later says that the threats were just a joke. Listen to your inner voice that says there may be a problem.

If you find yourself in a relationship with someone who displays any of the above-referenced behaviors, REACH OUT to one of the advocacy groups listed in Attachment 5 (pp. 27-28.) A new resource is Safe Chat Silicon Valley at www.safechatsv.com where you can have a secure one-on-one chat with a trained advocate. Help is available! Contacting one of the listed resources can be a first step toward safety planning, understanding your legal options, and obtaining a wide range of supportive services including shelter and counseling.
Culturally competent help is available. You do not need to go through this alone!

Warning Signs for Family Members and Friends

The National Domestic Violence Hotline lists some warning signs often apparent to the families and friends of domestic violence victims:

1) Their partner puts them down in front of other people;
2) They are constantly worried about making their partner angry;
3) They make excuses for their partner’s behavior;
4) Their partner is extremely jealous or possessive;
5) They have unexplained marks or injuries;
6) They’ve stopped spending time with friends and family;
7) They are depressed or anxious, or you notice changes in their personality.

The National DV Hotline suggests the following ways in which a family member or friend can support a person in an abusive relationship:

1) Be supportive and listen;
2) Be non-judgmental;
3) Encourage them to participate in activities outside the relationship;
4) Help them develop a safety plan;
5) Encourage them to talk to people who can provide support and guidance.

Pressuring a person to leave a relationship when they are not ready may silence victims and further isolate them, which puts them at greater risk. Be a supportive, non-controlling, encouraging person they can turn to when they are ready.

Red Flags

The DVDRT has previously identified numerous “red flags,” or factors that may precede a domestic violence related death. These factors have been reported and discussed in multiple studies.2 These red flags may not apply in every situation but may signal that a person is at risk. We hope that people will recognize these risk factors and seek help before it is too late.

Risk factors may include:

(1) Prior acts of intimate partner violence.
(2) Resistance to separation or ending the relationship.
(3) Access to firearms.

2 See:
(4) Controlling behaviors which may include social isolation, financial dependency by restricting access to money and information about finances, threats to take away children, or threats involving deportation.

(5) Stalking behavior including monitoring of daily activities.

(6) Threats of suicide and/or homicide.

(7) Kidnapping or imprisoning someone against their will.

(8) Lack of any, or very few, friends outside the relationship.

(9) Untreated and inadequately treated mental health conditions or illnesses including depression, anxiety, and related conditions. Issues may stem from early childhood trauma, abuse, neglect or abandonment.

(10) Previous use of weapons or threat of using weapons.

(11) Extreme jealousy and/or possessiveness.

(12) Prior strangulation.

(13) Aging related diseases (like dementia) which may exacerbate abusive or violent behavior.

(14) A sense of entitlement, self-centeredness, or a lack of empathy for others (including children).

(15) Illegal drug use or undue alcohol consumption.

(16) Unemployment or under-employment.

(17) Public display of aggression / violence towards partner.

One thing we learned loud and clear this year is that when danger is present, a victim and their family and friends should understand that it may be beyond their ability to control the actions of the perpetrator and they must seek help. People often fear “making things worse.” But sometimes friends and family are aware of these red flags from social media, and other interactions. Without intervention, the danger always gets worse.

What Else Can be Done?

Numerous fatalities studied by the DVDRT since 1994 have involved situations where family members, co-workers, friends, and community members were aware of serious problems in a relationship but did not intervene. Sometimes, people close to a domestic violence victim blame the victim for the violence perpetrated against her, while others may blame her if she doesn't immediately leave the relationship - not understanding the risks involved. In either case, blaming the victim of the abuse serves to re-victimize and discourage her from reporting the abuse and seeking the help she needs. Intervention and support are necessary when someone may be a victim of domestic violence. Domestic violence does not get better on its own, in fact it usually escalates without intervention. Calling 911 or seeking professional assistance could save a life!

Moreover, children, other family members, other household residents, neighbors, co-workers, innocent bystanders and first responders are all put at risk if they are nearby when the violence erupts. Almost every year, including this year, one or more of the victims listed in our report is a family member, friend or first responder. We must continue to educate the public on vicarious victim violence and how these issues affect all those who surround the primary victims. The early identification of children who are being abused or neglected, followed by the provision of support and interventions designed to insure their safety, healing from trauma, and healthy development, are crucial to preventing the perpetuation of an ongoing multi-generational cycle of abuse.
The DVDRT recognizes that a person may not know what to do when they suspect a person is a victim of domestic violence or if a child is at risk. The DVDRT recommends that one or more of the following actions be taken:

1. Call 911.
2. Contact a victim advocacy agency and inquire about ways to help the victim. The names and numbers of local agencies can be found on pages 27-28 of this report.
3. Ask victims if they are fearful of the perpetrator and why. Let them know that you are there for them.
4. Determine if there are deadly weapons in the home and contact local law enforcement or advocacy agencies about the threat of the use of these weapons.
5. Assist victims in calling a domestic violence advocacy agency to create a safety plan, obtain a restraining order, or seek domestic violence counseling. This is especially important if the victim wishes to end the relationship.
6. Take all threats seriously even if the victim says that the perpetrator is just “blowing off steam.”
7. Protect children. Do not be afraid to tell victims that domestic violence is harming their children. When necessary, contact the Child Abuse Hotline at the Department of Family and Children’s Services.
8. Learn about domestic violence and share the information with others.
9. Encourage people to seek mental health help if they are suffering from the loss of a relationship.
10. Reach out to a person who may be depressed or upset about the end of a relationship. Attempt to guide them into counseling or to seek professional help.

CONCLUSION

This report marks the 25th such report in Santa Clara County. It is therefore fitting that we pause and acknowledge great strides that have been made during that time. The Santa Clara County District Attorney’s Office which had one lawyer and one paralegal prosecuting domestic violence cases in 1993 now has a Family Violence Team consisting of 16 attorneys, 3 paralegals, 4 Victim Service Advocates, 3 legal secretaries and 3 legal clerks. The Santa Clara County Superior Court which had one courtroom one-half day a week devoted to domestic violence in 1993 now dedicates 4 judges and 4 courtrooms full time (when not restricted by the public health emergency).

In 2019, Santa Clara County has at least 6 advocacy groups serving victims of domestic violence: Asian Americans for Community Involvement (AACI), Community Solutions, Women SV, Next Door Solutions, Maitri and The YWCA – Silicon Valley. Most law enforcement agencies have specialized units investigating domestic violence cases. There are now 3 Family Justice Centers operating throughout the County and serving the victims of domestic violence. In 2014, the Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors convened an Intimate Partner Violence Task Force and the resulting recommendations have been adopted by the Board of Supervisors, creating the hope of even more resources to address comprehensively the issue from education and prevention to safety and accountability.
Domestic Violence is everybody’s problem. No socio-economic group, racial group, ethnicity, gender, or orientation is immune. Similarly, no one agency can solve the problem. Collaboration is the key to a comprehensive response. Law enforcement, advocacy groups and county agencies must continue to work together to share information and resources. But we also need to work on prevention through education, and empowerment of the public, whom we rely on to recognize and report domestic violence. We have made great strides in the past 25 years, but much remains to be done.

Respectfully Submitted: The Domestic Violence Death Review Team 2019
Mandate

The DV DRT investigates and reviews domestic violence related deaths in order to make recommendations aimed at preventing deaths in similar circumstances and reducing domestic violence in general. The DV DRT examines lives of the victims and perpetrators with a special focus on any contact the individuals may have had with the justice system, mental health services, or other social service programs. A comprehensive database of victims, perpetrators, and the circumstances surrounding the deaths is created to help identify trends and risk factors. The DV DRT has reviewed 297 deaths since 1993.

If problems, gaps or shortcomings are discovered, the team strives to prepare recommendations for effective intervention and prevention strategies. The recommendations are included in the DV DRT’s Annual Report, and often inspire changes to the Domestic Violence Law Enforcement Protocol as well. The Annual Report is given to the Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors and is published on the Santa Clara County Domestic Violence Council’s website and on the District Attorney’s website.

Information the team uncovers is used only to accomplish the constructive work of advocating for system-wide change and protecting future victims. The team’s job is not to point fingers or place blame. The members of the DV DRT firmly believe that lives have been saved as a result of the team’s work.

Creation of the DV DRT

In early 1993, a representative of the United States Department of Justice visited the Santa Clara County Domestic Violence Council and requested that the Council create a domestic violence related death review team. The DV DRT was established by the Santa Clara County Domestic Violence Council in October 1993 in response to this request. Santa Clara County was one of the first counties to establish a death review team.

In 1995, the California Legislature enacted Penal Code section 11163.3 which allowed all California counties to establish an interagency domestic violence death review team. These teams were mandated to coordinate and integrate state and local efforts to address fatal domestic violence incidents and create a body of information which would help prevent domestic violence deaths.

In 1996, the California Legislature expanded Penal Code section 11163.3. As a result of the new legislation, information shared in death review team meetings was to be confidential and not subject to disclosure or discovery by a third party. Recommendations and summary data may be disclosed.
Confidentiality

DVDRT members sign an agreement requiring that all information discussed in team meetings remain confidential. The only agreed upon public disclosure of cases involves statistics and fact patterns. The names of victims and perpetrators are removed out of respect for victims, family members, and survivors. The signed agreement is kept on file by the team chair. The agreement was amended in August 2017. A copy of the agreement is provided in Attachment 2.

Membership

DVDRT membership consists of a cross-section of organizations and disciplines in Santa Clara County that interact with domestic violence victims, perpetrators, and their children. Team members come from the Office of the District Attorney, local law enforcement agencies, the therapeutic community, victim advocacy agencies (including Asian Americans for Community Involvement, MAITRI, Next Door Solutions to Domestic Violence, Community Solutions, YWCA Silicon Valley), the Probation Department, the Department of Corrections, Pretrial Services, the Department of Family and Children’s Services, Adult Protective Services, Family Court Services, Family Law Bar, Victim Services, County Mental Health, the LGBTQ community, batterer’s intervention programs, the Department of Public Health, Veteran’s Affairs, and the Medical Examiner/Coroner’s Office.

Definition of “Domestic Violence Related Death”

The DVDRT defines a “domestic violence related death” as a death that occurs when the perpetrator and victim were involved in an intimate relationship, either at the time of death or at any time prior to the death, and domestic violence was the catalyst for the death. A domestic violence related death also includes the death of a family member, friend, and community member such as a first responder or innocent bystander, if the motivation for the homicide was domestic violence. Domestic violence related deaths include all homicides: murders, murder/suicides, suicides, fatal accidents, and blue suicides. Blue suicides occur when an individual threatens to kill police officers, verbally or by use of a weapon, and intends that the police will respond by firing upon the individual.

Each decedent is counted separately and given their own number, even if multiple people die during one incident.

CALL 911 FOR ALL EMERGENCIES

* Some of the Law Enforcement Agencies in Santa Clara County have direct emergency telephone numbers that can be programmed into a person’s cellular telephone. These numbers are provided by the DVDRT for those individuals who may need these numbers as part of their safety planning. The DVDRT recommends that individuals call 911 for all emergencies.*

Conducting the Lethality Assessment

This evidence-based Lethality Assessment tool is a user-friendly, straightforward instrument that predicts danger and lethality in domestic incidents between intimate or former intimate partners to a high degree. Research shows that only 4% of abused victims had used a domestic violence hotline or shelter within the year prior to being killed by an intimate partner. This Assessment encourages victims in high danger to seek domestic violence program services to prevent serious injury or death.

Purpose:

a. To improve the way law enforcement and the community respond to victims;
b. To educate and empower victims;
c. To respond more strategically to high danger or lethal situations; and
d. To enhance cooperation, communication and collaboration among law enforcement and domestic violence service providers.

Step 1 Fill out the Lethality Assessment form with the victim.

The officer should advise the victim that they will ask a short series of questions to help the officer determine how much immediate danger the victim is in. The assessment questions should be asked in the order they are listed on the form.

Ask all the questions, even if the victim responds positively to questions 1-3, which triggers a hotline call. The more questions the victim responds to positively, the clearer and more immediate it is that the victim is in danger.

Step 2 Assess the responses to the lethality assessment.

“Yes” to Questions 1, 2 or 3 → Call Hotline

“No” to Questions 1-3 but “Yes” to four of Questions 4-11 → Call Hotline

“No” responses may still warrant a hotline call if the officer believes it is appropriate. An officer may call the hotline and assess the victim as being in high-danger whenever they believe the victim is in a potentially lethal situation.

Step 3 Victim is Assessed as High-Danger – Referral Process.

1. Explain assessment to victim.
2. Advise that you need to call hotline and you would like for victim to speak with an advocate. (Remember: You are seeking the victim’s permission.)
3. If victim does not want to speak with an advocate, tell victim you need to speak with an advocate to seek guidance and gently ask victim to reconsider.
4. Call the hotline and give them the basic facts.
5. If victim still does not want to speak with an advocate, follow procedures under step 4 below.

Step 4 Victim is assessed as non-high danger, or the victim did not/could not participate in assessment or hotline call:

1. Advise of dangerous situation.
2. Advise to watch for signs of danger.
3. Refer to providers on DV resource card.
Step 5 Provide the victim with the DV resource card, case number and Marsy’s card as per the DV protocol.

Step 6 Please fax all Lethality Assessment forms to the appropriate DV organization listed on the bottom of the form regardless of the answers or whether or not the victim answered any of the questions.
