We all have experienced losses in our lives. One of the most challenging losses is the loss of a loved one due to death, divorce or break up. If you have experienced a significant loss within the past year or two, this workshop is for you. Learn about the normal stages of grief and loss, explore and discuss your individual experience of grief and improve your coping skills. Mindfulness and Compassion Fatigue

Working in the Santa Clara County can be an extremely taxing and stressful job. It is easy to get distracted, become over-worked, and get triggered by the content and subject matter of the field. This workshop will provide effective tools on how to avoid Burnout, Compassion Fatigue and Secondary Trauma. It is helpful to understand how secondary trauma works and ways to lookout for signs of work stress, because it typically stems from an un-balanced relationship to clients and co-workers. The class will teach mindfulness techniques as well as concentrate on better ways to practice caring for yourself and listening to your body for signs of fatigue and burnout.
